

CMP ISST Meeting Process

Individualized Service and Support (ISST) Definition: The primary goal of an ISST meeting is to discuss the complex needs of the family in an open forum that will provide the family with a variety of options for services. At its core, an ISST is a multi-disciplinary assessment of service team that focuses on needs identified by and inclusive of family members, with the goal of developing a customized and integrated service plan for that child and family. ISST is a family friendly and family focused team bringing together children (when age appropriate), parents/guardians, extended family, family support partners, community supports, and service agencies involved in the life of the family. ISST meetings are guided by the Family Voice & Choice principles in which the family members share their strengths, challenges, and support needs openly and without blame or shame.
